Game Summary:

Against all odds, Capo-Zero pulls off a comeback for the ages, shocking everyone, giving up four goals early in this game, to finally waking up as participants watching this game to become active contributing players in this game, and score the next six unanswered goals. This is a game that had two opposite halves that favored both teams. Halfway through this game, Capo-Zero had both feet in the grave, until collectively they decided to "wake up" and make this a game.

The Revolution had this game won halfway through this game, completely outplaying their opponent and dictating the tempo. They let this game slowly get away from them by not matching their opponents scoring as the game went on, and gave up some late game defensive turnovers and open shots by their opponent that eventually sealed their fate.

Joe "Guido" Conary returns to action after missing his last two games, and brought with him his time;y offense, stepping up to lead his team's offense, scoring a hat trick, to bring his team all the way back.

Shawn Mulcahy, we are now referring to him as "Playoff Shawn" worked his playoff magic again in big moments and scored two top corner sniper shots to get his team back into a tie and swing the momentum.

Mike Luise and Ron Aquino each scored 1-goal and 1-assist during their team's opening game scoring barrage.

Overall, this game was determined by each team's depth secondary scoring, as neither team's top players had any impact on the game sheet.
