Game Summary:

Poo Bears rolls to the winter 2025 championship, as they go undefeated in the playoffs, and cap off their season with an impressive shutdown and complete dominance of their opponent, with timely scoring, an uptempo running forecheck, team-wide defensive shutdown in their own end.

Tommy Guns gets to the Finals but runs out of gas as injuries take their toll on the roster and they never generate any offense in this game with only 14 shots, while the high-powered goal-scoring offense comes out and shoots blanks in the Finals!

Rob Sheridan takes over this game and embraces the spotlight as the player of the game, asserting his goal-scoring leadership skills in standing out from the rest of his teammates, scoring a hat trick, to lead the way.

Pat Pirone takes advantage of a defensive turnover in a scoreless game, sneaking behind the defense to score five hole in close on a nifty move, to ignite a three goal scoring barrage and change the momentum.

Pedro Fontes settles into his playmaker game to set up three goals.

Rick Cassano didn't score a goal all season to break out when it matters by scoring the key insurance goal with twelve seconds left in the first period on a long range shot, while also setting up another goal. Overheard on his bench was the comment "it's about time he actually did something on the rink."

Leo Trombley keeps his goal scoring streak alive by scoring a late goal, and third goal of the playoffs.
